Joseph Hart both prosecutes and defends. He is a grade 4 CPS prosecutor and member of the specialist rape panel. His practice, however, is predominantly defence work.

Joseph Hart was recently successful in his application to be included on the government's national list of special regulatory advocates in Health and Safety and Environmental law.

Since joining chambers in 2000, Joseph Hart has been practising in all areas of crime, regulatory crime and associated regulatory areas such as professional discipline and inquests. He has a growing licensing practice. Alongside a successful Crown Court practice in general crime Joseph regularly acts for Defendants in Health and Safety prosecutions in incidents involving death. This recently includes the prosecution of individuals and companies for breaches of regulations including fire safety. He regularly acts for prisoners in prison law matters. Specialising in particular in parole hearings.

Professional Discipline

In professional discipline cases Joseph has acted before the GMC in both FTP and IOP hearings; before the GDC; advised in cases before the General Pharmaceutical Council and appeared at university disciplinary hearings, and has represented Doctors and other professionals accused of falsifying references, poor performance, sexual misconduct and other egregious behavior.

Joseph's background in traditional criminal work means that he provides robust trial focused advice and quick thinking to the most complex regulatory cases.

Crime

In crime Joseph's practice includes all areas of fraud and financial crime, particularly money laundering; EBay fraud; frauds involving the infringement of copyright legislation and conspiracy to commit fraud. His clients have included professional people. This background in financial crime ideally places Joseph in the high value Proceeds of Crime Act work that he undertakes irrespective of whether that arises from civil or criminal proceedings. He advises and acts at all stages of PoCA proceedings to maintain a balanced tactical approach to confiscation proceedings.

Joseph also specialises in people trafficking offences; having acted as junior, led junior, and more recently leading junior in a number of complex multi-handed people trafficking cases. He regularly acts in cases involving firearms; all degrees of sexual offences and offences of violence up to and including murder. Joseph continues to provide specialist advocacy in prison law matters particularly in respect of those serving indeterminate sentences.

Joseph has acted as locum Crown Counsel to the Government of St Helena, in the South Atlantic. During his time on the island he prosecuted a number of serious sex cases involving very young victims. Recently he was briefed to return to the island to prosecute a high profile case involving a serving police officer. Joseph is an Advocate of the Supreme Court of St Helena and is a member of the St Helena and Ascension Legal Support Panel.

Joseph has also prosecuted serious sexual cases on the Falkland Islands and is keen to continue and expand his overseas practice.

He maintains a keen interest in complex road traffic cases and has acted in a number of cases involving high profile individuals.

Environmental

Whilst his practice is mainly defence, Joseph has regularly prosecuted for the Department of the Environment Food and Rural Affairs, Manchester City Council, Stoke-on-Trent City Council, United Utilities, Lancashire Fire and Rescue.

Joseph acts regularly for the Defence in cases involving allegations of environmental crime and brings his experience of jury-based advocacy to an area of law often dominated by advocates who lack Crown Court experience. He deals with a high volume of these cases and also ones with significant local interest. He defends in environmental prosecutions with associated high-value PoCA applications. Increasingly acting in waste management cases of the utmost seriousness.

Regulatory and Professional Discipline

In the regulatory work which he undertakes he is involved from an early stage and accepts instructions in inquests, particularly where there are issues of health and safety offences and questions of professional discipline.

He has an expanding practice in the area of fire safety law, which is a relatively new area of regulatory law.

Inquests

Joseph has conducted a large number of inquests arising out of fatal road traffic accidents and accidents at work, on behalf of Insurance companies as well as Local Authorities. These have included the Spinningfields Bridge Inquest and the high profile Grayrigg Derailment Inquest.

Joseph Hart is a member of the institute of licensing and acts in licensing matters at all levels.

Joseph Hart regularly lectures in chambers; to solicitors' firms; to prosecuting authorities, and to specific interest groups. He also teaches on the Bar Vocational Course in Manchester, and is involved in advocacy training through his Inn (Inner). He has acted as a legal advisor to television series, and has appeared on current affairs programmes in his professional capacity.

Joseph has knowledge of both French and Italian legal systems and speaks Italian and French fluently; and basic German and Russian. Joseph regularly attends the International Bar Association Conferences and was recently selected to be a member of the Bar Council's 2012 trade delegation to China.

Notable Cases

R v Mohammed Isaq and Haslington Hall Ltd

Practice Area: Health and Safety

Joseph Hart prosecuted in the case which resulted one of the longest sentences imposed under the Fire Safety Order. It was significant in many respects, both in terms of the degree of culpability, the extent of commercial involvement of the Defendants and the unsuccessful legal challenges to the Prosecution. It represents a successful six-year long enforcement regime for Cheshire Fire and Rescue Service.

Counsel and solicitors were involved from the earliest stage to advise in this difficult case.

Counsel was instructed by Warren Spencer of Blackhurst Budd, a leading fire safety specialist.

HSE -v- B

Practice Area: Health and Safety

Joseph Hart and Nicholas Courtney (instructed by Greenwoods, London) secured a conditional discharge for the Defendant company (a charity), who pleaded guilty to a Section 3 HASAWA offence arising out of a serious injury to a pupil at their special school. The prosecution resulted from the traumatic amputation of the boy's index finger on the sixth day of operation of a newly built school, but the Trafford Magistrates accepted that the combination of the company's general highly positive attitude to health and safety, its positive good character and the uses to which any financial penalty would otherwise be put, allowed them to draw back from the financial penalty that would usually follow in such a case.
